Three movements - (1) Theologico-Religious, following the Renaissance, was an unsuccessful attempt to reconstruct the modern consciousness on classic models. If modern thought would go back to Christianity, it would find inspiration for a greater life than the world has seen. (2) Scientific. The scientific spirit had not sufficient play under mediaevalism. A revolt began with the Arabs, but Francis Bacon was the great prototype and embodiment of the scientific movement. (3) Philosophical. Des Cartes initiated this movement. Motives (a) negatively, rebellion against the traditional ideas in philosophy and against the restrictions of the old regime. Men had tried to adapt their thought to the thinking of Aristotle, (b) Positive, independent inquiry. It is only as an age asserts its right to settle its own problems that it can understand old masters. Traditionalism had become so great an evil that they swept it away, and individualism became too marked. It was one-sided. The threads that bind the present with the past are necessary to perfect progress. The historic spirit has grown gradually until, in the nineteenth century, it dominates. Des Cartes (1596-1654) was born at La Haye, France. At the College of La Fleche, under the Jesuits, until sixteen. He studied little except pure mathematics and loved that for its clear ideas and well-defined method. He early began applying these universally. Two years in Paris society. Two years of bard study. He thought philosophy should be reformed, hut before making the attempt spent several...
