COUNT GEOFFREY S CREST BY CAROLINE K. HERRICK ONE autumn morning of a far-away time, in the fair land of Anjou, Gaspard, the charcoal-burner, was setting out from his humble cottage in the forest. Farewell, good wife, he said cheerily. I am off for another day s work. Ay, another day s work, to earn but just another day s bread, replied the wife, sadly While we eat each day all the earnings of the day before, how shall we ever begin to save for Babette s marriage portion? The child is scarce six years old, said the father. She will not marry next week. Neither shall we begin to save for her next week, nor next year, nor ever, I fear, answered his wife. Have faith in God, said Gaspard. It may please Him to make us rich before the child is grown. 54 That evening the wife waited in vain for her husband s return. At midnight she barred the door and lay down to a sleepless night, haunted by dread of calamity. But morning brought her husband back, with a strange jingle of gold in his pouch and on his lips a wondrous tale of having guided a knight out of the forest and to the castle of Loches, where the knight proved to be none other than the lord of the land, Count Geoffrey of Anjou, who graciously caused his peasant guide to be seated beside him at table,...
